Write Now!

Do you ever dream of a career as an author? Here's your chance to get started! If you're between the ages of 13 and 19, you could be the winner of the 2004 WriteNow Young Writers Competition.

Our website, www.WriteNow.org, is a public forum for teenage writers all over the world. It is run entirely by teens and focuses on subjects that concern them.

WriteNow was set up five years ago by three high-school students from Chicago who aspired to become authors and were convinced there must be others like them. They were absolutely right ! Within six months, over 300 teens had joined. Today we have thousands of registered members from all over the USA and numerous other countries.

Registered WriteNow members have the opportunity to:

- post their own writing on the website.
- read the stories, plays, essays and poems written by other teenagers.
- get help with editing their work.
- join a forum for the exchange of ideas and opinions about their favorite books.

One of our most popular events is the yearly WriteNow Young Writers Competition, judged by our members. The competition has already launched several promising careers. We're proud to report that the winner of last year's poetry competition, Janica Hall, has just had two of her poems published in Highlight Magazine. And the winner in 2001, Bob Silvers, is now an editor at City House Books.

25 This year's competition - open only to registered members – is devoted to short stories. To enter, go to www.WriteNow.org and follow the instructions. All entries must be sent in by November 30, 2004. From January 15, 2005, the stories will appear on the website, and members will be able to vote for their favorites. So what are you waiting for? Start writing – now !
