PART I: ACCESS TO INFORMATION FROM WRITTEN TEXTS (60 points)

Read the article below and then answer questions 1-4.

Write Now!

Do you ever dream of a career as an author? Here's your chance to get started! If you're between the ages of 13 and 19, you could be the winner of the 2004 WriteNow Short Story Competition.

Our website, www.WriteNow.org, is a public forum for teenage writers the world over. It was set up five years ago by a group of high-school students from Chicago convinced there must be others who shared their aspirations to become published authors. They were absolutely right! Within six months over 300 teens had joined. Today we have more than 2000 registered members, and another 5000 visitors drop by every month to get a peek at what their peers are writing.

Run exclusively by teenagers, the website reflects the diverse personal and cultural concerns of its members, who come from every corner of the USA as well as from places as far-flung as Ireland, New Zealand and Hong Kong.

Registered WriteNow members have the opportunity to:

- post their stories, plays, essays and poems on the site.
- access information about the publishing world, including useful tips and advice from professionals.
- offer solutions to other writers' queries and dilemmas.
- join a forum for the exchange of ideas and opinions about books and writing in general.
- take part in the Cooperative Writing Workshop, a recent addition that enables members to collaborate on writing projects.

One of our most popular events is the annual WriteNow Young Writers Competition, which has already launched several literary careers. The winner in 2001, Bob Silvers, is now an editor at City House Books, and is one of the experts who go online to share their knowledge of the publishing world with our members. We're also proud to report that the runner-up in last year's poetry competition, Janice Hall, has just had two poems accepted for publication in Highlight Magazine.

- 30 Starting this year, the competition is open only to registered members – another good reason to join us. To enter, go to www.WriteNow.org and follow the instructions. All entries must be submitted by November 30, 2004. From January 15, 2005, the entries will be posted on the website, and members will be able to vote for their favorites.
- 35 So what are you waiting for? Dust off all those unfinished stories and poems you have hidden away in your bottom drawer, and start writing – now!
